Skillet

Hanging on this post
In my dirty clothes
Try to concentrate on You
But I keep forgetting Safe enough to not let go
Scared enough to not release
Open up to drink the wind
You tear me up when You come in Take me down, shake me out
Give me a brain that I might know You better
Take me down, shake me out
Give me a brain, that I might know You better Hanging in the sun
Waiting for the rain
Saw a field catch on fire
I caught myself just watching Safe enough to not let go
Scared enough to not release
Open up to drink the wind
You tear me up when You come in Take me down, shake me out
Give me a heart that I might love You better
Take me down, shake me out
Give me a heart that I might love You better Hanging on a post
Just next to Yours
I want to curse and spit
I weep aloud at Your mercy Take me down, shake me out
Give me a life that I might serve You better
Take me down, shake me out
Give me a life that I might serve You better
