

Missing a Month

Michael McFarland

June arrives and I am left alone
Six hour drive to get back home
I try to play the radio
But these pop songs wont commiserate
Atlantic stretched beneath your wings
You fly to dance before the kings
Youre breaking hearts and chasing dreams
As dusk meets dark, I deliberate Youre leaving me here alone
With a feeling Ive never know So now I lie in an ice cold sweat just reminiscing
Of a smile that I cant forget and should be kissing
And the feelings that wont die yet Ive been dismissing anew
Again I lie in an empty bed until the daylight
Brings the memories of words you said when you said goodnight
And the pictures that burnt blood red and that was all right its true
Girl we went missing a month but tonight Im just missing you April burnt us both down to the bone
When you walked out I turned to stone
Erased your number from my phone
To make myself get over it
I drift, distracted, couldnt sleep
My voice ran silent, I ran deep
I called you names and counted sheep
Picking fights and throwing fits
