Prayer In Open D

Emmylou Harris

There's a valley of sorrow in my soul
Where every night I hear the thunder roll
Like the sound of a distant gun
Over all the damage I have doneAnd the shadows filling up this land
Are the ones I built with my own hand
There is no comfort from the cold
Of this valley of sorrow in my soulThere's a river of darkness in my blood
And through every vein I feel the flood
I can find no bridge for me to cross
No way to bring back what is lostInto the night it soon will sweep
Down where all my grievances I keep
But it won't wash away the years
Or one single hard and bitter tearAnd the rock of ages I have known
Is a weariness down in the bone
I use to ride it like a rolling stone
Now just carry it aloneThere's a highway risin' from my dreams
Deep in the heart I know it gleams
For I have seen it stretching wide
Clear all across to the other sideBeyond the river and the flood
And the valley where for so long I've stood
With the rock of ages in my bones
Someday I know it will lead me homeOh, ho, oh
Oh, oh, oh
Oh, ho, oh, oh
Oh, ho, oh
