

Routine

Bonzie

Routine swallows me
Until I don't know how to live
Science, poetry
Doesn't make much sense anymore
Now I'm a lot like I said I would never be
Your smile
Is the most honest smile
That I ever knew
I fear
You'll leave here for the sky, what am I to do?
Is there somebody who sees this world like you?
They're all asking questions, I don't have the answers
I thought if I think through the mirror of my elders
Now I'm a lot like I said, I would never
Be
Not me
Now I'm a lot like I know what is not right
Now I'm a lot like I swore on my own life
Now I'm a lot like I said I would never be
