

Oh Hope, My Tired Friend

Heather Maloney

I've been waiting on delivery to come to me a while it's been there in my periphery just out of reach i been waiting on so many star and when i was a child i thought that they would twinkle at the wishes that i sent up their way but they betray the ones who pray for happinessoh hope my tired friend i followed you right to the end of that road and ill follow it right back to meI been waiting on lovers friends foreign family to feel and act the way they want them to i been waiting on the human race to raise to gracefully but i needed them to be the ones, the rule of thumbs the monks the nuns the major drums for happinessoh hope my tired friend i followed you right to the end of the road and I'll follow it right back to meevery little flower in the field every little death upon my windshield every set of eyes that drive by every single thing has been a sign I been overlooking everything that's right in front of me i been searching from the message from beyond i been chasing the rising line the end of time the sacred sign the holy wine of happinessoh hope my tired friend
i followed you right to the end of the road and i'll follow you right back to me ill follow you right back to me i'll follow it back heyeverly little broken highway line every single thing that's been a sign
