

Dream Again

Anacrusis

I don't dream anymore
Yes, they just seem to fade
Always stripping me so clean
Deserting me I strive to retain my goals
And try to achieve a certain life
So I can at last be free
Once again allowed to dream I try hard to keep my hold
So as not to drift away
Still, I cling to hope in vain
To dull the pain I strive to retain my goals
And achieve a certain life
So I can at last be free
Once again allowed to dream Someday I'll understand
These aspirations at hand I strive to retain my goals
And try to achieve a certain life
So I can at last be free
Once again allowed to dream Someday I'll understand
These aspirations at hand
Someday I finally will see
My ambition's mortality
Someday
