

Open Road

Tim Stop

I don't listen any longer to the voices in my head I ain't gotten any stronger doing anything they've said and I don't worry any longer about the girls that pass me by I know the ones that really matter will find their way into my life
Oh my God the sun is shining on this open road
Let it take me anywhere, that's where I want to go There's a saying that goes something like "You'll regret the things you didn't do" and after all the times I've messed up, I'm thinking that it must be true cuz I've cared too much about what people think and it's kept me inside my shell but the people that'll like me will like me anyway and everyone else can go to hell
That's why I'm singing
Oh my God the sun is shining on this open road
Let it take me anywhere, that's where I want to go
And it's not that I'll never learn to trust somebody else
But probably first I should learn to trust myself
I just don't care any longer about your fortune and your fame
Living a life for anything but what's in your heart Isn't it a crying shame?
That's why I'm singing
Oh my God the sun is shining on this open road
Let it take me anywhere, that's where I want to go
I just want to know where it goes...
