No Consequence

If you look into a distant corner of our galaxy you will see a halo of light
A brilliant ring of fire
And inside this halo of light a star is being born
A star that will burn for billions of years
And when it dies it will give birth to new stars
And they will burn for billions and billions of years more
I tell you this because just like that star
You are beautiful
And just like all the stars that follow
My love for you is eternal
