

The Weight Of The World

Editors

Keep a light on those you love
They will be there when you die
Baby, there's no need to fear
Baby, there's no need to cry Every little piece in your life will add up to one
Every little piece in your life - will it mean something to someone? You fused my broken bones
Back together, then
Lift the weight of the world
From my shoulders again Every little piece in your life will add up to one
Every little piece in your life - will it mean something to someone?
Every little piece in your life will add up to one
Every little piece of your life will mean something to someone You touch my face God whispers in my ear
There are tears in my eyes
Love replaces fear
You touch my face God whispers in my ear
There are tears in my eyes
Love replaces fear
Fear Every little piece in your life will add up to one
Every little piece in your life will mean something to someone
Every little piece in your life will add up to one
Every little piece of your life will mean something to someone
