

When No One Walks with You

vildhjarta

I am grasping in vain to catch the flow of time. In the very same moment as the horns begin to howl I recognize the deafening tones

They speak of a grief is to come telling me to prepare my escape
I must make my decision to wait for perdition or get it all together

I must make my decision because I can't leave forever

Confronted with this choice there is no redirection. Look at yourself look at what you've become you were untouchable

How could you deceive me? I thought you would never change

You are shattering foundations once written in stone

If no one will walk with me then I walk alone. You have been misguided by distorted views

Choking your thoughts without requesting the facts

If you follow given plans then you will be the fool

When fed by a profiting hand there will always be a price

When seen in the right light it becomes so evident.

But how can I judge or give you advice when

You give in to temptation and treason

Unable to see the insidious reasons

It tried my best to stand your guard

Discouraging this event

But now a stunning decline has commenced

It is sundering my final strength

I feel the presence of defeat.
