Hooves Over Northland

Falconer

From the western realm they marched
Through thunder, storm and rain
On a mission to quell the snakesYou will search every hole
And turn every stick and stone
Bring them out to lightThe hooves were pounding over the northland
While the battle cries rise high
Shaking up the distant skiesReaper had them close at hand
Not losing them out of sight
From early morning until the nightFrom the southern realm they marched
To gaze into their eyes
Illuminate all the liesNo mercy will be shown
To stop their reckless minds
Burn them out and make them blindThe hooves were pounding over the northland
While the battle cries rise high
Shaking up the distant skiesReaper had them close at hand
Not losing them out of sight
From early morning until the nightPace onward you boldest of men
Our time will come when we reach the end
We will descendIn the mist of the twilight tonight
When the sky is clear and the stars shine bright
Their land we'll smitePounding over the northland
While the battle cries rise high
Shaking up the distant skiesReaper had them close at hand
Not losing them out of sight
From early morning until the nightPounding over the northland
While the battle cries rise high
Shaking up the distant skiesReaper had them close at hand
Not losing them out of sight
From early morning until the night
