I was about to leave when you looked in my eyes,
reading my lines like you're reading my mind.
Follow me out the door, into the car and you say you've never done something like this before.

I don't know who you are but you're breaking my body into billions of flourescent darts.
This might not be what we are but I think I can tell you were born with a massive heart.

The only way you'll know is looking over the edge at the void where everything starts.
The only way you'll know is looking over the edge at the void and never depart.

I don't know who you are. I don't know who you are.
Looking over the edge, the edge now.
