Unnoticed

Plumb

Did you ever hear of Carrie? Mother of six, Angel to a thousand You may have never seen her But her actions spoke much louderShe changed this place She changed this placeDid you ever meet a man named Joe? Father to eight, giver to plenty more He'd give you his very last dollar When what he needed cost twoHe changed this place Without you knowing his faceWe're so selfish, self seeking We're so desperate to be number one So unworthy of what's given What are we doing here? Have you ever played the martyr Only for the reason of a prize? Can we ever give up trying To be something in another's eyes? And change this place We can change this placeWe're so selfish, self seeking We're so desperate to be number one So unworthy of what's given What are we doing here? We're so selfish, self seeking We're so desperate to be number one So unworthy of what's given What are we doing here?Unnoticed Unnoticed Unnoticed UnnoticedWe're so selfish, self seeking We're so desperate to be number one So unworthy of what's given What are we doing here? We're so selfish, self seeking

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/

We're so desperate to be number one So unworthy of what's given What are we doing here?