I See the Want In Your Eyes

Conway Twitty

I see the sparkling little diamond on your hand
It's plain to see that you've already got a man
I can tell you're not about to fall for any of my lines
I see the want to in your eyesDeep in your smile, there's a quiet, soft desire
Like the embers of a once raging fire
You know I could light that fire again
You know it isn't wise
I see the want to in your eyesHow strong's a band of gold
Is it strong enough to hold
When a love has grown cold
And a woman wants a love, sweet and warmHow many women
Just like you have silent schemes?
How many men like me
Do they sleep with in their dreams?
