

Rain. Sun. Gone.

Mudvayne

So far, left with nothing hanging by a memory
No stars, to give me one wish so lost in the dark
Feels like I'm caving in from the outside, all right, all wrong
See you again so long, nothing matters anymore at all
Nothing matters anymore Life's not meant to be disposable, lost, found, dead
Ready and willing, can't stop the bleeding
Life's not meant to be expendable, rain, sun, gone
Left robbed unwilling, can't fight the feeling So low, overwhelming clinging to a tragedy
So clear, hear weeping voices tears fall in the dark
Feels like I'm carving in from the outside
So lost, so gone, so wrong Life's not meant to be disposable, lost, found, dead
Ready and willing, can't stop the bleeding
Life's not meant to be expendable, rain, sun, gone
Left robbed unwilling, can't fight the feeling It's never ending, never goes away, but you did
It's never ending, never goes away, but you did Why, why the body's just a vehicle to hold
Until we find another space
Find another place to start this over
The enemy, the action I can't condone
Do you suffer with me Can I give you my loss to feel, to hold close
Can I give you my pain, to feel
To be eaten alive by conscience
Suffer, fucking suffer, suffer like me Life's not meant to be disposable, lost, found, dead
Ready and willing, can't stop the bleeding
Left robbed unwilling, can't fight the feeling
