Watch the Sky

Something Corporate

I'm lost at sea, the radio is jamming, but they won't find me I swear it's for the best, and then your frequency is pulling me in closer till I'm home and I've been up for days, I finally lost my mind, and then I lost my way, I'm blistered but I'm better and I'm homeI will crawl, there's things that are worth giving up, I know, but I won't let this get me, I will fight, you live the life you're given with the storms outside, somedays all I do is watch the skyThis room's too small, it's only getting smaller, up against the wall, I'm slowly getting taller, in this wonderland, your skin feels so familiar and I'm homeI'll crawl, there's thing that are worth giving up I know, but I won't let this get me, I will fight, you live the life you're given with the storms outside, somedays all I do is watch the sky, and somedays all I do is watch the skyand I think I, I could use a little break today was a good day and I think I, I could use a little break, but today was a good day...and it's a deep sea, in which I'm floated, and still I sink to think that I must...crawl, there's things that are worth giving up I know, when you can't bare to carry me, I'll fight, you live the life you're given with the storms outside and somedays all I do is watch the sky
today was a good day
today was a good day...
