

I Gotta Start Somewhere

Rhonda Vincent

I spent some time in Carolina
I thought those mountains out there just might do the trick
Two weeks of sunset took my breath
But I still remember what I went there to forget I'm looking for a place to turn my heart around
Where I can hear your name without breaking down
What I was looking for wasn't in the mountain there
But I gotta start somewhere So I'm gonna take a chance this evening
On someone who just might treat me off my feet
He holds me close, I close my eyes
I see your face and I realize that I'm Still looking for a place to turn my heart around
Where I can see your face without breaking down
Dancing in his arms, I didn't find the answer there
But I gotta start somewhere Thought I could drown your memory in a glance
Thought time might fix the way I feel
But after all I've tried on still Looking for a place to turn my heart around
Where I can hear your name without breaking down
Tonight I'll be there on my knees waiting [Incomprehensible]
But I gotta start somewhere
I've gotta start somewhere
