

Twenty Two (Feat. Theo Martins)

Wakey!Wakey!

I guess you know why they're all looking at you
For me it started when I turned twenty two
You count your blessings but you're still black and blue
You should go home before your money's all gone
You said it was over but it's started again
Said it was easy but you still never win
And it was done before it started and they're not your friends
You should go home before your money's all gone
You should go home before your money's all
I hope you know that I don't like you this way
And I know you lost it but you still try and stay
And it was sad but now it's over, there's nothing left to say
You should go home before your money's all gone
You should go home before your money's all
