

God Made A Woman

Jerrod Niemann

I used to tear up the roads in this old town
Every bar I'd find open, I'd close it down
That two a.m. last call, man I'd answer
I'd burn that candle at both ends
'Til it met in the middle, just smoldering
I was searching for something I didn't even know what I was after
Then God made a woman fall for a man
Didn't have much going, but his life began when she took his hand
The sky turned blue, the clouds parted, light shined on a lonely heart
When God made a woman
Never gave him a reason to bless me at all
And I still can't believe that an angel would fall
For a guy like me, guess he sees who needs saving
Every night I hit my knees again, thanking the Lord she's a lot like him
She loves me with a grace that's truly amazing
Yeah, God made a woman fall for a man
Didn't have much going, but his life began when she took his hand
The sky turned blue, the clouds parted, light shined on a lonely heart
When God made a woman
He made the moon, he made the sun
But to me the best thing to me that he's ever done
God made a woman
Yeah, God made a woman
God made a woman fall for a man
Didn't have much going, but his life began when she took his hand
The sky turned blue, the clouds parted, light shined on a lonely heart
When God made a woman
When God made a woman
Yeah, yeah
God made a woman
