You're Not Stubborn

Two Door Cinema Club

I was wrong, I take it back
Now can we get along? Give up the slack
You know it all could be much easier
But I'm still traveling, I'm still travelingAnd all the while, the people talk
About the unsung shit that they then stop
And use to please the crowd, the swarming hordes of fun
That was in in-turned glassesSo if I'm wrong again, I apologize
You can take your guest, I'll check out my eyes
It's a common thing to be out of line
But it's getting old by the fifteenth timeTake your time, make up your mind
Though it won't change the world, you'll be more inclined
To have a point of view that makes it through
And keeps you traveling, keeps you travelingSo pick your friends, forget the rest
You can't live life being second best
The critics talk of stubbornness
But you're just passionate, you're just passionateSo if I'm wrong again, I apologize
You can take your guest, I'll check out my eyes
It's a common thing to be out of line
But it's getting old by the fifteenth timeSo if I'm wrong again, I apologize
You can take your guest, I'll check out my eyes
It's a common thing to be out of line
But it's getting old by the fifteenth timeSo if I'm wrong again, I apologize
You can take your guest, I'll check out my eyes
It's a common thing to be out of line
But it's getting old by the fifteenth timeSo if I'm wrong again, I apologize
You can take your guest, I'll check out my eyes
It's a common thing to be out of line
But it's getting old by the fifteenth time

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/