

Rearview

Bad Suns

You wear your hair down, your face is made up
You know this town so well, you talk a lot, it's okay
Pretend that you look the same, a crown of a different edge
You wonder where it went Feels so far from home, try to fill a hole
Sunset in the rearview, losing your control
No matter what she took, it feels so far from home
Sunset in the rearview losing your control
Losing your control That quarter moonlight, rev up the engine
The rusty neon glow, complain a lot, it's okay
The city's just ain't the same, shadow of a brighter day
You wonder where it went, though Feels so far from home, try to fill a hole
Sunset in the rearview, losing your control
No matter what she took, it feels so far from home
Sunset in the rearview losing your control
Losing your control, losing your control Man you keep calling, time starts scrolling by Knows how the hedges behind you
You keep running, time starts scrolling by
The fact is there's no one behind you Feels so far from home, try to fill a hole
Sunset in the rearview, losing your control
No matter what she took, it feels so far from home
Sunset in the rearview losing your control
Losing your control, losing your control, losing your control, you're losing your control
Losing your control, losing your control, losing your control
