Let Me Love You

Josh Wilson

Try and pretend that you're okay
But I don't believe the smile you fake
It's about time that you stopped saving faceI'll meet you where you are
I'll meet you where you areWhy don't you let me, let me love you?
Oh, you don't have to prove a thing
Why don't you let me, let me love you
For you who you are, not who you should be?
Let me love you and I will let you love me tooWhy are you scared to tell the truth?
What do you think you're gonna lose?
You know we're forgiven, not accusedI'll meet you where you are
I'll meet you where you areWhy don't you let me, let me love you?
Oh, you don't have to prove a thing
Why don't you let me, let me love you
For you who you are, not who you should be?
Let me love you and I will let you love me too
I will let you love me tooTry and pretend that you're okay
But we both know that you're not alright
And that's okayWhy don't you let me, let me love you?
Oh, you don't have to prove a thing
Why don't you let me, let me love you
For you who you are, not who you?Why don't you let me, let me love you?
Oh, you don't have to prove a thing
Why don't you let me, let me love you
For you who you are, not who you should be?
Let me love you and I will let you love me
