

Connect the Dots

The Purrs

She comes apart all the time
So don't be late for the show
She's begging you for a dime
She's feeling so low, man
She's really let herself go Can you remind me again
How are you and I friends?
I can hardly hear what you say
You're fading away
And you're sleeping all day
And you've got a little stain
Right there on your cheek She's got a sad, sad face
Before the show began for a lucky man
And out in the rows
Can you connect the dots in a parking lot?
Connect the dots, yeah, yeah, yeah She's making love when she wants
And she's drinking a lot
It's her happy go lucky charm
'Cause that's all she's got
It's her place at the bar Can you remind me again
How are you and I friends?
I can hardly hear what you say
You're fading away
And you're sleeping all day
And you got a little stain
Right there on your cheek I wanted to celebrate
But now it's gone, yes, the moment's gone
And out in the rows
Can you connect the dots in the parking lot? And she's got a sad sad face
Before the show began for a lucky man
And out in the rows
Can you connect the dots in a parking lot?
Can you connect the dots in a parking lot?

Songwriters

Jason Thomas Grauman; James F Jr Antonio; Craig Francis Keller; Jason William Atkin
Published by
BIG DAMN DEAL MUSIC

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnlyrics.com/>