

Dink's Song

Jeff Buckley

Oh yeah, yeah, baby...scatting....oh yeah
If I had wings, like Noah's dove, I'd fly a river to the one I love.
Fare thee well, my honey, fare thee well

If I met your man and he was long and tall I'd heave his body like a cannon ball
Fare thee well, my honey, fare thee well

One evening it was drizzlin' rain and in my heart, I felt an aching pain
Fare thee well, my honey, fare thee well

As you wore, wore your apron low Gonna keep you, away from my door
Fare thee well, my honey, fare thee well

And your apron is straight up to your chin. I cross your door, but I never come in
Fare thee well, my honey, fare thee well

And the woman I love, I crave to see She lives out in the country, and I know she won't lie to me
Fare thee well, my honey, fare thee well

Ah... she's gone, and no she won't come back
She took the last nickel out of my savings sack
Fare thee well, my honey, fare thee well

And I went to the mountain, looked as far as my eye could see. Some other man got my woman, and I know some blues got me. oh yeah, yeah
Fare thee well, my honey, fare thee well

And I found her letter, on the old maple tree
She says, I'm gonna get you for all the things you did to me.

Oh yeah, baby, baby
Fare thee well, my honey, fare thee well

Now if a man is a cheater, he's having himself a time, but he'll never keep his woman cause he just don't know his mind. His mind, mind, mind, mind Fare thee well, my honey, oh yeah

Money are you there, lot of money here (this line is not clear) but you can't give me money for my unborn child, child, child, child
Fare thee well, my honey, fare thee well

When a woman gets in trouble, everybody puts her down Looking for a good friend and no one can be found Fare thee well

Woman never gonna change, never done no harm
Lord the nine train, take my poor baby home Fare thee well, oh yeah

Now the woman I love (verse is unknown)
Fare thee well, oh yeah, oh yeah, oh yeah

And her Papa is dead, Mamm's will to be I ain't got no woman to love and care for me Fare thee well, oh yeah, oh yeah
Fare thee well, my honey, oh my honey, Baby, yeah, yeah, yeah
