

The Edgy 8 Ball Song

Molly Jenson

(Got it.) Do you ever tire from the sound of your own voice?
It's only been five minutes and I'm full of you
How about a little originality?
Maybe that way I'll get some peace You haven't seen me for three years
So how can it be That you say that you know me
How can that be?
You've never asked me anything
And the funny thing
Is that you think
You've earned the right to tell me
Anything What a waste of a day
It's the last full one I'll give away
"Blah-blabbity blah-blabbity blah blah blah"
Was all I ever heard you say
Something about you and me
I don't know what that could possibly be When you haven't seen me for three years
So how can it be That you say that you know me
How can that be?
You've never asked me anything
And the funny thing
Is that you think
You've earned the right to tell me
Anything Is it just me that you've said these things to?
Am I the only one that you've said these things to? You haven't seen me in three years
You haven't seen me
(you haven't, you haven't, you haven't seen me) That you say that you know me
How can that be?
You've never asked me anything
And the funny thing
Is that you think
You've earned the right to tell me
Anything

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnlyrics.com/>