The Cool, Cool River

Paul Simon

Moves like a fist through the traffic Anger and no one can heal it Shoves a little bump into the momentum It's just a little lump but you feel it, in theIn the creases and the shadows With a rattling deep emotion The cool, cool river Sweeps the wild, white oceanYes Boss, the government handshake Yes Boss, the crusher of language Yes Boss, Mr. Stillwater The face at the edge of the banquetThe cool, the cool river The cool, the cool riverI believe in the future I may live in my car My radio tuned to The voice of a starSong dogs barking at the break of dawn Lightning pushes the edge of a thunderstorm And these old hopes and fears Still at my sideAnger and no one can heal it Slides through the metal detector Lives like a mole in a motel A slide in a slide projectorThe cool, cool river Sweeps the wild, white ocean The rage, the rage of love turns inward To prayers of devotionThese prayers are the constant road across the wilderness These prayers are These prayers are the memory of God The memory of GodI believe in the future We shall suffer no more Maybe not in my lifetime But in yours I feel sureSong dogs barking at the break of dawn Lightning pushes the edges of a thunderstorm And these streets, quiet as a sleeping army Send their battered dreams to HeavenTo Heaven For the mother's restless son Who is a witness to, who is a warrior Who denies his urge to break and runWho says, "Hard times? I'm used to them The speeding planet burns, I'm used to that My life's so common it disappears And sometimes even music cannot substitute for tears
