

Radio War

Iron & Wine

Did the wine make her dream
Of the far distant spring
Or a bed full of hens
Or the ghost of a friend All the while that she wept
She had a gun by her bed
And a letter he wrote
From a dry, foundered boat And the train track will take
All the wounded ones home
And I'll be alone
Fare thee well Sara Jones Now we lie on the floor
While the radio war
Finds its way through the air
Of the dead market square And the beast never seen
Licks its red talons clean
Sara curses the cold
"No more snow, no more snow, no more snow"

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnlyrics.com/>