

Broken Ones

Jacquie Lee

Crush your heart and say you'll never giving up
That you'll carry on when every door will shut
And you'll live you'll live with no regret
We wear a smile to hide that we've been hurt before
Keep our desires in a suitcase by the door
Cause you know, you know we're only human

So lay your hands on the left behind
We know how it feels to be forgotten for a while
In a crowded place try not to feel alone,
Just remember that we've all been broken once!
Let's love the broken ones, yea-yeah!
Love the broken ones!

Raise your glass to all the words we never say
We do our best, but still we look the other way!
Cause sometimes it's easier to run
Cause after all, we're only humans!

So lay your hands on the left behind
We know how it feels to be forgotten for a while
In a crowded place try not to feel alone,
Just remember that we've all been broken once!
Let's love the broken ones, yea-yeah
Love the broken ones!

Sometimes we're left behind,
Feel like the only one
But we were born to try
Yeah, we're only human!

So lay your hands on the left behind
We know how it feels to be forgotten for a while
In a crowded place try not to feel so alone,
Just remember that we've all been broken once!
Let's love the broken ones, yea-yeah
Love the broken ones!
Love the broken ones!
Love the broken ones!
Love the broken ones!

Letâ€™s love the broken ones!
