Find My Way Back

Four Year Strong

I can't believe what this is doing to me
I've seen so many cities fall down to their knees
I'm begging you, please don't bury me
Underneath their crumbled walls
My barren thoughts weigh heavier
Than the weight of our demands
I feel the pressure building up inside my head
I feel the distance drowning me in my own sweat
'Cause I need the cold now
It's my turn to roll out all the stops
And show that I know where I have to go
I've got to find my way back
Retrace my steps, so I can prove to you that I'm alive
Crawling my way back to the place
I know that's meant for me to find my way back
To find my way back home
I feel the heat and what it's doing to me
I've been pulling at my own skin to hide my face
It's hard to relate, forget the way you feel
When you are safe at home
You leave this world alone, stone by stone
If only I had known about
The pressure building up inside my head
I feel the distance drowning me in my own sweat
'Cause I need the cold now
It's my turn to roll out all the stops
And show that I know where I have to go
I've got to find my way back
Retrace my steps so I can prove to you that I'm alive
Crawling my way back to the place
I know that's meant for me to find my way back
Find my way back home
One mile left
It lasts a lifetime like a promise kept
Under the weight of the world
Falling down on your shoulders, it's colder
I've got to find my way back
Retrace my steps so I can prove to you that I'm alive
Crawling my way back to the place

I know that's meant for me to find my way back
Find my way back home
Find my way back home
'Cause I've been crawling my way back to the place
I know that's meant for me to find my way back
Find my way back home
