Surprise Surprise

Ian Gomm

Surprise, surprise, I told you lies
I thought the truth would set you free
Surprise, surprise, it isn't all as it seems
But who knew you'd wake up from your dreamsIf I told you myself
It could have saved you the hell
Now look who's sorry, God I'm so sorry
It's never the right time, I guess it's do or dieJust when you think you've got me figured out
Just when you think you know me well
Baby, you've barely even broke the ice
My river runs wide, you're not in sight
But you're closer than you wereTonight, I'm a chameleon
And every spot's hiding my scars
But I will survive 'cause I'll only let you in
When I can be sure of who you areAnd you can call it a game
But it's me playing it safe
And God I'm so sorry, I'm just so sorry
What can I say, it's our turn to stay aliveJust when you think you've got me figured out
Just when you think you know me well
Baby, you've barely even broke the ice
My river runs wide, you're not in sight
But you're closer than you were
You were tonight, tonight, tonightAnd it's in your eyes that is all or nothing
What I can't disguise is that you're onto something
I let myself go, will you still want me? Will I be enough?
The fear of that haunts me 'cause what if you walk awayJust when you think you've got me figured out
Just when you think you know me well
Baby, you've barely even broke the ice
My river runs wide, you're not in sight
But you're closer than you were
You were tonight, tonight, tonightJust when you think you've got me figured out
Just when you think you've got me figured out
Surprise, surprise
