If It Takes You Home

Idlewild

You could break me by the bones until you break me inside You could drag me from my home and lay me down by the riversideWhere there was lie in your eyes now we read by the night And still nothing's moved even denying what's trueYou might have all the facts but the truth is truth
no matter how you act
If it takes you, it takes you
takes you home
And if it takes you, takes you
takes you home
And if it tries to take you it takes you home home
And if it takes you, it takes you takes you homeYou could take me on my own until you break me inside What's been divided by walls is now divided by nightIn my sleeping bag the metaphor of darkness, it's a light But it's all up to you even denying what's trueYou might claim to have the facts
but the truth is truth
no matter how you act
takes you home
And if it takes you, it takes you
takes you home
takes you home
And if it takes you, it takes you
takes you home
