Sunset Borderline

Sandi Thom

A simple scent of summer
Stole my heart for the last dance
The smell of two-stroke petrol
From a motorbike we used to have
Those playing fields of cut grass
You know high school left me kind of blue
Now with every sweet summer breeze
I'll, I'll be thinking, I'll be thinking of you
Now I'm waiting for the sunset borderline
'Cause every sun's gotta set with time
But I'll remember those moments forevermore
As the days where nothing had changed at all
Found a long lost picture
Of the car we used to run
Cotton candy colored paintwork
Looked so faded in the sun
And that 6 O'clock sunrise
You always used to drive me to
I guess that long lost picture
Will always have me thinking, have me thinking of
I'm waiting for the sunset borderline
'Cause every sun's gotta set with time
But I'll remember those moments forevermore
As the days where nothing had changed at all
So for every little sad sweet love song
That's ever sung, I'll be thinking
And for every lost summers day
That set, been and gone, I'll be thinking
I wonder if you're gonna be
The tear that follows me
Until that sun is set
I guess I'll always be
I'm waiting for the sunset borderline
'Cause every sun's gotta set with time
But I'll remember those moments forevermore
As the days where nothing had changed at all
I tunned into the radio
Flicking through the stations one by one
Tried to listen through the rain

Humming those melodies alone
And I remember how you told me
Lennon & McCartney always pulled you through
So as the music plays on
I'll, I'll be thinking, I'll be thinking of you
