

How To Get Bigger

Made Out of Babies

streets are wrapped, childlike faces smooth and blank.
firm young flesh,
hung with paper crowns.

pull me up from where we are,
the big keep getting bigger, and their hearts keep getting harder,
an imaginary game,
eating at every living thing, a wide mouth dripping with sarcasm, a bloody fat slash grinning over,
bleached white-fang teeth, that glow like green warning signs of sickness, taking for your kind,
and running with you winnings, they're just running with your winnings.

staring ahead and hearing, voices saving useless things, about how to be better, about how to get bigger, it's your knight on white horse, turn it all around, the world is just for you, but you don't want to take it, ah - you must be useless!
and you must be lazy,
have enough then,
with insipid grins,
that swallow hard and Bear. Big. Burden.

this place is getting tighter, and all around the angels scream and close the gates of heaven, a division of the ages, try to swallow wings of traitors, robbed of being really human,

And the voice drip with sarcasm like bloody fat slash grinning over white-fanged teeth that glow like green warning signs of sickness and running with their winnings they're just running with their winnings

Big are getting bigger and Hearts are getting harder
a voice dripping with sarcasm like, a bloody fas slash grinning over,
that glow like green warnings

but little things add up a barbed-wire fence of stiffened spines broadcasts violent death through flashing blinds look at their faces Keep it all inside.
if not, we'll all go down together, a coward's crawling death, the paper king's big dinner.
and down into their eyes and the vacant, glaring, certainty of nothing, ever, anywhere
