Little Devotional

Taking Back Sunday

Well I'm blowing smoke out of your window
And you're slipping back into your dress
You know you were always such a lady
I've always been impressedBut gentlemen, they don't ask questions
Just keep quiet, pay attention
Gentlemen don't ask questions
We could pay attentionI said I'm gonna have myself in shambles
Before your folks they're up and looking for some answers
Said I'm gonna have myself in shambles

Before your folks are up and looking for some answersWell I pictured you in blue But I have to say, I'm more partial to the red

Deep, dark, and devastating

Leaving no question as to where you've beenI calm the crowd by keeping quiet

Move like a shadow up to your mattress

Gentlemen don't ask questions

We could pay attentionDo you think he'd be better, doing what I do best?

Do you think he'd be better, doing what I do best?I said I'm gonna have myself in shambles

Before your folks are up and looking for some answers

Said I'm gonna have myself in shambles

Before your folks are up and looking for some answersDo you think he'd be better, at doing what I do best? Do you think he'd be better, at doing what I do best? Do you think he'd be better, doing what I do best?

Do you think he'd be better, doing what I do best?I said I'm gonna have myself in shambles

Before your folks are up and looking for some answers

Said I'm gonna have myself in shambles

Before your folks are up and looking for some answersSaid I'm gonna have myself in shambles

Before your folks are up and looking for some answers

Said I'm gonna have myself in shambles

Before your folks are up and looking for some answers
