

For Loving You

Bill Anderson

For loving you, for needing you, but most of all
For loving you, for loving youFor loving you, my life is so much richer
 You've given so much to live for
 And I never really lived before
Before loving youFor loving youAnd for loving you, my faith is a little stronger
 For a world that could give you to me, couldn't be as bad
 As it's made out to be, there was good there
I just could never see, before loving youFor loving you, for needing you, but most of all
 For loving you, for needing youAnd for needing you, I feel a whole lot stronger
 For there's a strength that comes from knowing
 You need to give up yourself and darling
I gave so much of myself, loving youFor losing youAnd now I'm losing you and I'm a sadder, lonelier man
 Than I ever thought any man could be
 But even in my loneliness, even as I walk the hunting trail of memory
 Even for all the pain that I'm feeling right now
Never once will I ever regret, having had the chance of loving youLoving you
