Ember's Fire

Paradise Lost

A fallen time that's bygone
A crude elite that's from a distant zone
You turn a blind eye on what's `brave'
You don't know if it's the truth you toldAnger looks on the quiet dreaming
Seals the sense incandescent onesHold back desire for danger
A bet you lose, you'll have no way to turn
I see the man who lives and breathes corruption
Into a circle that you call your ownDon't run away, from th pain. A claim that you deal with A power game, from within. Impossible for you to see thisLaid down the laws of deceit
The ones who cherish are the ones who'll go
Into the ashes of a tortured world
Only in mind's eye can you see a lightHarmony breaks, dark awakes, in old eyes - the trouble feel it
Here to stay, mark the way, improvise the judgement hearingAnger looks on the quiet dreaming
Seals the sense incandescent onesAll remains of the glowing embers
Is a bleak cold irrelevance
