

Diamonds And Pollen

Marilyn Manson

Diamonds and pollen, America bled to death
Electric and pregnant, brilliant sluts and fire worship
Devouring the righteous, we were just monkeys braiding thread
We were golden needles, diamonds and pollen And Coma White, a mannequin of depression
The face of the dead star, fagged out for the corner
She was so soft in the bed
And the pomegranate earth spins into oblivion The one that trembles, the one that fears
The one that suffers, the one that vomits
The one that needs The one that trembles, the one that fears
The one that suffers, the one that vomits
The one that needs A million scars, a million promises
A million scars, a million promises
A million scars, a million promises
A million scars, a million promises A million scars, a million promises
A million scars, a million promises
A million scars, a million promises And all your sad endings are planting in their gardens
And they're waiting to grow and to die like flowers do
And all your sad endings are planting in their gardens
And they're waiting to grow and to die like flowers do
And all your sad endings are planting in their gardens
And they're waiting to grow and to die like flowers do

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>