

Neither of Us Can See

Incubus

I am one big walking chemical reaction
A buzzing hive of cells, synopsis
And nascent self perception Isn't it disdainful and curious
That both of us think we know everything? We both have brains, we both have eyes
Neither of us can see
One in the same, two of a kind
And neither of us can see I am just a blinking neon roadside attraction
A mass of future wrinkles
And untold untapped potential Isn't it disdainful and curious
That both of us think we know everything? We both have brains, we both have eyes
Neither of us can see
One in the same, two of a kind
And neither of us can see I am one big fleeting errant contradiction
So good to meet you, we are one in the same Isn't it disdainful and curious
That both of us think we know everything? We both have brains, we both have eyes
Neither of us can see
One in the same, two of a kind
And neither of us can see
