

Sunrise

C.C.S.

sunriseâ€“messaging on my window pane sends fire scouting through my brain sunrise â€“turns my face to burning brass and my eyes to molten glass

I got a long day to live â€“ donâ€™t know â€“fâ€™ Iâ€™ll make it but Iâ€™ll try â€“ not to cry sunshine â€“early morning light is still, colors creepin up the hill sunshine â€“people shuffling down the street, sleep still dragging at their feet and itâ€™s time to start thinking â€“ about the things i gotta do â€“ all day through.

...bridge...

I knew â€“Iâ€™ve been thinking half the day, almost all my mind away

I knew â€“sunshine beating on my head, scorching â€™till your face is dead itâ€™s your own fault woman â€“ you shouldnâ€™t have tried to get inside â€“ of my hide sunset â€“now the light is fading fast, and another day has passed sunset â€“now your face comes back to life, carving like a sunday knife if this pain is love â€“ itâ€™s almost more than i can stand â€“ to be a man
