Sunlight In the Rain

Matt Simons

I feel I should let you know
Maybe you've met her so
I'll do my best to fill you inLately its not so bright
The girl who lights up my life
Finding a new way to beginI've tried to tell her everything's gonna be alright
We both know it's gonna take some more timeIf I alone could write
A song to find the sunlight in the rain
Comforting and calm all the whileIf I alone could write
A song to break the daylight through the pain
Tried as it is true, as all the love shines through when she smilesSeemingly there's no cure
Tears that begin to pour
Soon as the season starts to showI'll take her out one night
To beautiful Brooklyn Heights
Holiday lights are all aglowI've done my best to try and make her believe again
I wish that there was more I could doIf I alone could write
A song to find the sunlight in the rain
Comforting and calm all the whileIf I alone could write
A song to break the daylight through the pain
Tried as it is true, as all the love shines through when she smilesI would do anything for her
I would do anything for herGradually time heals all
Snow that begins to fall
Covering all we start anew

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/