

King of the Kingdom of Man

Wax Fang

Check the covers for spiders before you go crawling in bed
You long to lie down beside her and plant ideas in her head
You are children of angels and you're living in sin
Well they've got just the place for the kind of trouble you're in
And her head smells like flowers and you're counting the hours between thunder showers
Unleash your new superpowers don't be a coward
Did you come to remember or did you come to forget
You went looking for Jesus but found the devil instead
So many convictions about life after death
But you just can't believe in any single one of them
And it's all on your shoulders feels like a boulder you're just getting older Universe seems to grow colder each time you behold her Alpha man father of every ones children
The king of the kingdom of men
You father your sons and your daughter
All of them follow your every command
You sire them all on your own
Then you kick them all out of your home
Alpha man tell all of your children
to leave you alone
Alpha man tell all of your children
Tuck the old folks into their new homes watch the skin slip off of their bones
Watch out for pigeons on the telephone poles they'll shit all over your clothes
Alpha man father of every ones children
The king of the kingdom of men
You father your sons and your daughter
All of them follow your every command
You sire them all on your own
Then you kick them all out of your home
Alpha man tell all of your children
to leave you alone
Alpha man tell all of your children
to leave you alone
