

When the Heart Resigns

Don Brownrigg

back at the start, i float again from high as a kite and sheets to the wind fighting the time stumble around the spirals of flight i've tumbled down whatâ€™s in the wait? it's hard to know it's my need to stay and my need to go if you love hard you risk sinking in down and apart trying to say when what do you do when the heart resigns?

with all that gone and left behind what do you do with the time?
freedom climb
free the mind

so back to ones alone and unwound a chest here that beats with no other sound so back to ones i start again out of the heart and into the wind away from the pack a lone wolf begins

what do you do when the heart resigns?
with all that's gone and left behind
what do you do with the time?

when you're not open, you flip your signs
