Risk

Judy Collins

Time slips by in the hourglass

You can hear your name

Sand slides through the stranger's hand

As he deals the gameAll the candles are burning low

No more cradles and no more snow

Bet your life on a lucky roll

Play your queen, you could win your soulStakes are high you can live or die

To risk everythingIn your goblet the wine is black

As a moonless night

Wet your lips before you kiss

The blazing lightBets are off but the game is on

Drop the armor you counted on

All your armies are fled and gone

Win your king, you can play your pawnTake your time, you have just begun

To risk everythingCatch your tears in a golden sieve

Don't regret what you did to live

Don't forget that you must forgive

To risk everythingThrough the window you see the storm

That is gathering

Painted gypsies on dappled horses

Are gallopingThrough the trees in the howling wind

Down the hills to the river bend

Shadow ghosts that are blind as night

Shrieking curses against the nightDaring you to come join their flight

And risk everythingCatch your tears in a golden sieve

Don't regret what you did to live

Don't forget that you must forgive

To risk everythingThere is nothing to hold you now

To your fault or mine

Fallen idols and martyred souls

Are the only kindFeet of clay in the emerald skies

Birds of prey when the dreamer dies

Perfect crosses perfect your lies

Burning saints in the flaming skiesBet your life every promise dies All that's left for you to try is risking everythingCatch your tears in a golden sieve

Don't regret what you did to live

Don't forget that you must forgive

To risk everythingCatch your tears in a golden sieve

Don't regret what you did to live

Don't forget that you must forgive

To risk everythingTime slips by in the hourglass

You can hear your name

Sand slides through the stranger's hand

As he deals the gameAll the candles are burning low

No more cradles and no more snow

Bet your life on a lucky roll

Play your queen, you could win your soulStakes are high you can live or die

To risk everythingCatch your tears in a golden sieve

Don't regret what you did to live

Don't forget that you must forgive

To risk everything

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/