

A Beautiful Mine

Aceyalone

A Beautiful mind, turned water into wine
But that's not all
Broke the water, shined through
Shaped the earth, created the code of life
Radiated with energy, the great boat of life
The spark
Sparkling through the dark night
Then walked
And took forever without a thing in sight
Didn't hear a sound to the first tree grew and fell
Deaf to the ocean swelled, washed up a miracle
A Beautiful yours, a beautiful mine
By the grace of fire, out sprouts the land
Fan the desire, footprints in the sand
On top of the mountain peak where the man speaks to himself
Closer to the system of the stars
What he felt can't be described
It's alive
Rise with the tide
Communicate with all sides, nothing wants to die
Build a nest, build a bridge
Build a tower
Construct a dam, dig a hole;
Build a flower
Ultraviolet rays magnified the essence
All praise to the presence, one pure thought
Taught him the lessons
This spread with the first migration of the heads
The first wants to flock
A beautiful yours, a beautiful mine
One's so enlightened; one's so divine
The planet's are in-line, all void in time
A beautiful mind
They opened up the brain and opened up the heart
What is man made of?
Love from the dark
The will to invent the wheel
Work the field, the shield, the intent to kill, the uphill
Matter of existence, matter of persistence,
Matter of distance to search for the mystics
Finder of lost souls, teacher of apostles, the mind's so colossal
A beautiful mind
A beautiful mind, a beautiful idea

One that was right here, blind to the naked eye, tied to a fear
Once it was nothing and now it is here
A beautiful mind Not accidental, coincidental, experimental
A beautiful mental, a touch so gentle
A life so simple to spin on the axis to access the temple
A beautiful mind A beautiful mind, put fruit on the vine
At the same time he made love a crime
Mellowed out the screams of all mankind
Walked along side you when you was left behind
Purified the waters, carved the canyons
Fed the families when it was starved and famined
Drew the blueprints so everyone had a chance
Organized the people and made man advance
A beautiful yours, a beautiful mine Something outa nothing
Oh, what a far cry
More than a hard try
Pointed out the start guide
Made love, made hate
Saved sake
Nothing left the crate but fate
Constructed structures, it's a pretty labyrinth
Detailed a portrait
Healed nations
Took blame when no one else was having it
Evolved the species, and had patience
Wrote the scrolls in thousands of languages
Came with us to fight against the giant and sang with us
Created chaos, pervaded destruction
Made law and order and then corruption
Laid the foundation for all things to stand on Then cleared the ground for the mother ship to land on Sailed across the seas, followed the breeze
Cured disease
Made poison
Settled the fear, took them on the righteous path,
Gave them the math, and still had the time to laugh What a beautiful mind to have
