

Dear You (far Away)

Zebrahead

Dear you, what's your name?
When did we start this crazy game?
Pull up a chair, grab a drink
I need something not to make me think
And all in all, it's all the same
The days go on and on and on and onEleven days and forty nights
When is the last time that we kissed goodnight?
I want to know who you're laughing with
I want to know that there's more than this
But all in all, it's all the same
It goes on and onBecause you're far away, just like yesterday
Wait to see you smile and I'll be gone
So far away, never ending day
Drive a million miles I'll be gone, I'll be gone a whileI never thought it would come to this
I never thought of all the stupid shit I'd miss
The way you looked when I made you mad
We never missed the things that we never had
And all the talk and all the time
It goes on and onBecause you're far away, just like yesterday
Wait to see you smile and I'll be gone
So far away, never ending day
Drive a million miles I'll be gone, I'll be gone a whileShe said, "That's right, I don't want to"
She said, "That's right, I don't want to"
She said, "That's right, I don't want to leave now"She said, "That's right, I don't want to"
She said, "That's right, I don't want to"
She said, "That's right, I don't want to leave now"Dear you, what's your name?
When did we start this crazy game?
Pull up a chair, grab a drink
I need something not to make me think
Goes on and on, and on and on and onBecause you're far away, just like yesterday
(On and on)
And IBecause you're far away, just like yesterday
Wait to see you smile and I'll be gone
So far away, never ending day
Drive a million miles I'll be gone, I'll be gone a while
