Eight Letters

Take That

We became the parade on the streets that we once cleaned

Expendable soldiers smiling at anything

Raised on a feeling our lives would have meaning eventuallyWe were once the answer and then you discover You're actually just one thing after another

And what was the question and why was the lesson so deafening? This is all that matters now

And that was all that happened anyhow

You can look back but don't stare

Maybe I can love you out of thereAnd when I went away what I forgot to say

Was all I had to say

Eight letters, three words, one meaningAnd outside forces didn't make it easy So I thought I'd go before you leave me

Self preservation was no explanation for anythingBut the truth is more than we'll ever comprehend I'm just starting to understand, my friend

All of that distance, 'cause I fell in love with the enemyThis is all that matters now

And that was all that happened anyhow

You can look back but don't stare

Maybe I can love you out of thereAnd when I went away what I forgot to say

Was all I had to say

Eight letters, three words, one meaningAnd when I went away what I forgot to say
Was all I had to say

Eight letters, three words, one meaningAt last, we meet on no man's land Just footprints in the sand

We meet on no man's land, at lastAnd when I went away what I forgot to say

Was all I had to say

Eight letters, three words, one meaningAnd when I went away what I forgot to say Was all I had to say

Eight letters, three words, one meaning One meaning, just one meaning

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/