

Ending Start

Karamel Kel

All this that is more than a wish is a memory

    All this that is ceases to be, all is revealed

        The obvious door opens nothing

            Nothing, nothing left, nothing left

            When you try to see, we'll watch you

                When you try to leave, we'll keep you

            When you should be dreaming, we'll wake you

            But don't scream, we'll make you swallow your words

            Gave them our reactions, our explosions, all that was ours

                For graphs of passion and charts of stars

            Gave them our reactions, our explosions, all that we are

                For graphs of passion and charts of stars

                    How ending starts

                    Ending starts with answers

                    How ending starts

                    Ending starts with answers, answers
