Indian Summer Sky

U2

In the ocean cut, swim, deep the sky
Like there, I don't know why
In the forest, there's a clearing
I run there towards the lightIt's a blue skyIn the awful holding deep decide
If I could, I would
Up for air to swim against the tide
Hey, hey, hey, up toward the skyIt's a blue skyTo lose along the way
The spark that set the flame
To flicker and to fade
On this the longest daySo wind blow through to my heart
So wind blow through my soul
So wind blow through to my heart
So wind blow through my soul
So wind blow through to my heart..You give yourself
To this the longest day
You give yourself
You give it all awayTwo rivers run too deep, the seasons change and so do I
The light that strikes the tallest trees
The light that wait for I
The light, waiting up toward the skyIt's a blue skyTo lose along the way
The spark that set the flame
To flicker and to fade
On this the longest daySo wind go through to my heart
So wind blow through my soul
So wind go through to my heart
So wind blow through my soul
So wind go through to my heart
So wind blow through my soul
So wind go through to my heartAnd you give yourself
To this the longest day
You give yourself
You give it all away
