LONELY CHRISTMAS CALL

Writers George Jones and George Riddle

Copyright 1966 Won't you beckon to our lonely Christmas call?

You left a year ago this Christmas and we're wondering if you miss us.

Don't know why you up and left and went away.

The kids are lonely here without you, even wrote old Santa about you.

Please don't leave them all alone this Christmas day.

Don't you miss their arms around you? Do their memories surround you?

Don't you know it's not their fault things are this way?

Why not show consideration to the ones whose heart you're breaking?

Give them your gift of love this Christmas day.

If you could see their little faces, as round the tree they take their places,

They're looking for the biggest gift of all.

So why not show consideration to the ones whose heart you're breaking?

Won't you beckon to our lonely Christmas call?
