October Sky

Cosmic Replicant

And your eyes once so kind, now they never meet mine
And just stares like a cold winter's night
When you kissed me goodbye I could taste every lie
And I don't have to ask myself why
It's as clear as the October sky
And your words once so sweet, now they fall incomplete
And they're no longer speaking to me
When will I shed my grief for a moments relief
And pretend these aren't tears in, in my eyes?
I'm as blue as the October sky
Now I feel like such a fool 'cause my love's been overruled
So I'll have to plead my case to the moon, what more can I do?
When your touch has gone cold like the first hint of snow
And your emotions seem frozen inside, does this love have to die?
They're as cold as the October sky
Now I feel like such a fool 'cause my love's been overruled
So I'll have to plead my case to the moon, what more can I do?
When you kissed me goodbye I could taste every lie
There's a hole in my heart a thousand miles wide
It's as deep as the October sky

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/